THE EXECUTION OF SUE MUNDY.

AN INTERVIEW WITH THE PRISONER.

Sue Mundy was ignorant of her fate until very late yesterday evening, Rev. Mr. Talbot of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, who had said nothing about it, told her when he said Sue If he knew what would be done with him, he said he thought he would be executed, as the court-martial refused to have him introduce witnesses. The minister then asked him if he had any idea when his execution would take place. He replied, "In a few weeks." The minister then told him it would be earlier than that, "in a few days." Rev. Mr. T. then informed him that his execution would take place in a few hours.

He was under the impression that he would be shot, but when he was told that he would be hung, he manifested a little meanness by a sign and uttering "Oh!" After the first tidings of his fate he was very calm and collected. When he really realized his condition he knelt with his hands clasped behind his head, and, with eyes wildly glancing, he kept his feet.

At last a long shout proclaimed his fall, and the cause of the firing became generally known, the commotion subsided. It is a wonder that we are so quiet to record this connection.

ARTHEMUS WARD.—Masonic Temple has been transformed into a palace for the reception of fashion, intellect, and beauty. Artemus Ward is the great magnet around which this brilliant array centres. And his and Morrison entertainment constitute a powerful attraction. His name is upon everybody's lips, and, of course, with the setting sun, his friends were the way to the Masonic Temple. His lecture was a success. Once again did Ward not satisfy the public. The wit with which he abounds, like good champagne, maintains its sparkle in being transferred from glass to glass. His instructive points do not grow blunt by repetition. The soft, the sugar tree loves none of his sweethearts by his drawings; neither does the lecture of Artemus Ward lose any of its force and value by being often told. We can always find something in it to amuse us; and while the man maintains a character for originality, he will always exert an influence over the public. For sterling merit and the creation of downright fun, the mere praise will be awarded to A. Ward. Beccot to govern it you want to receive for his lecture to night.

THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA.—A popular dictionary of general knowledge, edited by George Ripley and Class. A. Davis, in 16 volumes, a vol. double column, 750 pages each. Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The Herculean task has at last been completed, the world is presented with an American edition of classical, ancient and modern, for every variety, reader, and learner, in six volumes, a staff of twenty-two editors, and learned men of every department in every part of the country, have been enlisted, and upon the work. The labors performed were laborious, and the Louisville Journal had done great justice. He positively declared that the attention of the country to the "New American Cyclopaedia" was unprecedented, and that the Louisville Journal had done great justice to the work.

WORLDS' THEATRE.—On next Wednesday afternoon at half past two o'clock, a grand matinee will be given at Worlds' Theatre for benefit of the U. S. volunteers, and let us hope that the matinee will be a success. The manager is a man of great energy and it is a credit to our city.

He also died being present when Kalmar and Roberts were killed, and said that it was Martin and Ladd who were killed, and that he had charge of one of the corps, and that the Louisville Journal had done great justice.

He declared that he was not guilty of one of the outrages that he was charged with, and that the Louisville Journal had done great justice.

He positively declared that he would be tried, and he said he would be tried by the side of his father, mother, in his uniform, or, if this was permitted, at least bury him with his uniform.
